

This adapter enables you to convert the internal USB 2.0 connector on your motherboard to a normal USB 2.0 female connector. This allows you to connect USB devices internally in your computer. This is typically used for USB ports located at the front of the computer case. By using this adapter you can avoid having to run a USB cable out through the back of your computer. Works without drivers on all operating systems.